The new Fifty Shades Darker trailer has been released, and you're gonna need some air after seeing the naughty antics this dark-and-twisted couple is up these days.The two-and-a-half minute clip gives fans an extended look at some of the new characters of the series, including Ana's very creepy stalker, Leila, Ana's boss, Jack Hyde, and Christian's former lover, Elena—played by the incomparable Kim Basinger."Do you think you're the first woman who's tried to save him?" Elena asks Ana.That's all great and interesting, but let's skip to what we're all here for: Ana (Dakota Johnson) and Christian (Jamie Dornan), who are back together and, as Ana claims, happier than ever, after accepting a seemingly innocent (ha!) dinner invitation."But we're only talking, and that is it." Sure, Ana. Cut to panties being slipped off under the dinner table and an elevator scene so hot you'll be hitting that door close button extra hard, if you know what we mean.There's also several long and steamy stares, a few truly romantic shots of a masquerade ball, and plenty of Christian shirtless scenes to keep you warm until Fifty Shades Darker is released on Valentine's Day 2017.Dornan even promises that this film will be more "enjoyable" than the first of the franchise, because the cast and production don't feel as much pressure to please the audience as it did with the first."Everyone's relaxed a bit so there wasn't that pressure to set the tone for the movies, so I felt a little more freedom this time, and it probably made it more enjoyable," the actor tells The Hollywood Reporter.Watch the hauntingly erotic trailer (on repeat), below.This content can also be viewed on the site it originates from.Page 2 Do Not Sell My Personal Information. Media Platforms Design Team50 Shades of Grey/YouTubeFor design geeks, set designer C. Scott Baker has without a doubt one of the coolest jobs in the film industry. He's insanely impressive resume includes movies like Avatar and Bridesmaids (which, as expected, was "a blast"), and soon you can see his work in the hotly-anticipated 50 Shades of Grey movie, out on Valentine's Day. Baker is currently working on the third installment of the Divergent trilogy, Allegiant, but he took some time to tell us what it was like to design for the movie version of E.L. James' beloved naughty novel about the extreme love affair between high-powered CEO Christian Grey and college student Anastasia Steele. ELLE DECOR: Had you read the book when you were approached about the project?C. Scott Baker: I actually read the script first. Often when a book is adapted into screenplay a lot of things have to be glossed over or skipped, and I didn't want to taint my idea of what the idea of the vision of the movie should be. I read the book after.ED: How did you get involved with the movie?CSB: I initially spoke with [Production Designer] David Wasco in July of 2013, and we went back and forth on the phone for a bit. I was excited to work with him. He and his wife [Set Decorator Sandy Reynolds-Wasco] are phenomenally talented.ED: How do you approach the design process?CSB: I would say one of the most important things is to understand who these people are who are going to inhabit the spaces you're designing. One of the things I do is write a design brief, get to know the characters, and do a little psychological study about who they are. Often the sets can become characters in their own right, so it's important to understand the backstory of the spaces you create. Christian is very interesting and compelling character. Understanding who he is and what they story is saying about his person informs his environment.Media Platforms Design Team50 Shades of Grey/YouTubeED: What kind of feel did you want for Christian's apartment?CSB: Definitely an incredibly modern -- I wouldn't say cold, but impersonal -- controlled environment. The interesting part was creating enough clues to his personality in the design so it doesn't feel completely static, like a model house. [Director] Sam [Taylor-Wood] is an artist, and she was particular about what kind of art Christian would have. Everything on screen is a very deliberate choice.ED: What about the Red Room of Pain?CSB: The color is a lot stronger there than in other rooms. The main thing is we wanted it to feel both sensual and masculine -- the things he likes in his heart more than the projection he wants to portray. It was very important that we got it right, and it was the longest design work on the movie from beginning to completion. I think the time we spent paid off. I don't think anyone is going to be disappointed.Media Platforms Design Team50 Shades of Grey/YouTubeED: How did you make sure you got it right?CSB: A couple of advisers in the BDSM scene were brought on to work with the director and production designers. We were very interested in making sure we weren't doing things that the [BDSM] community would flag as wrong. We wanted it to feel authentic.ED: Was Christian's home a set or was it in an apartment building?CSB: Those were all sets we built on a soundstage. His apartment and living room and kitchen were on one stage, the bedroom suite on another, and the hallway to bedroom and Ana's room on another.ED: How do you make a room sexy?CSB: As a designer, I feel that design is very sexy, but a lot of people may not have the same response when they see something well designed. Modern design is typically a very reduced style. I think when it's done well it's sexy. Most of the choices in his apartment were made to reflect his character more than make a particular design statement. In the red room we used leather tiles on the floor, which is a little unexpected. If I had his apartment to design for myself or a client, I would have made very different choices. But you're designing for the camera instead for a client, so there's some freedom and restrictions there. The most interesting spaces to me are ones that lead your eye.I'm an editor at Veranda.com, ELLEDECOR.com, and Housebeautiful.com. I've never met a gallery wall I didn't like and in my apartment you'll find probably too many photos and prints of oceans, lakes, and pools. The sexiest movies aren't necessarily lurking in the adults-only section of HBO -- or in the deleted archives of one's browser history. Often, the steamiest films are mainstream. Whether a flick actually features a crazy-hot love scene or a more innocent tryst between a forbidden couple, it's perfectly acceptable to find these movies tantalizing. Let's be real: That was totally the filmmaker's point.Is it hot in here? Nope, it's just these movies. Click through to read about the sexiest movies to inspire endless fantasizing. Skip navigation! The steamy novel "Fifty Shades of Grey" and its sequels, "Fifty Shades Darker" and "Fifty Shades Freed," became major pieces of pop culture around the time of their publication. The three books held the top three spots on best-seller lists for much of their debut year and have inspired parodies and knock-offs. You may have heard the "Fifty Shades" trilogy be described as "Twilight" for adults or "pornography for moms" and questioned what the books are really about. Here is a brief overview of the first book, "Fifty Shades of Grey," to help you understand what's on everybody's minds. E.L. James originally wrote "Fifty Shades" as a series of episodes on a "Twilight" fan website; she titled it "Master of the Universe." Appropriately, the main characters were originally named Edward and Bella, and the story took place in Seattle, which is close to the location of the "Twilight" books. After readers raised concerns about the sexual nature of the content, James removed the story from the fan site and posted it on her own website. "Fifty Shades of Grey" is the story of a 21-year-old college student, Anastasia, who begins a relationship with a 27-year-old successful, powerful businessman named Christian Grey. They meet when she interviews him for her college newspaper. When they later meet up in Portland, Oregon, he rescues her after she over-imbibes, which results in her chastely spending the night in his Heathman Hotel room. Christian is intrigued by her and offers her a non-disclosure agreement and contract that establishes their exclusively sexual relationship and defines it as one of "dominance and submission." She doesn't sign the agreement but does lose her virginity to him. Further scenes in the book introduce his lavish lifestyle with astonishing Seattle apartment, personal helicopter, and chauffeur. But there is also tension with an older woman who first introduced Christian to BDSM, as well as allusions to a former girlfriend who figures in the later books. Ana eventually meets Christian's parents and the reader is also introduced to Ana's mother and stepfather. The novel plays on tension over the nature of their relationship and the possibility of romance and love, as well as Ana's explorations in Christian's darker tastes in sexuality. Christian wants to have control, likely related to the physical and mental scars he bears from child abuse. However, he is likely as seduced by emotion for her as she is enticed by both sexual explorations and romance for him. "Fifty Shades of Grey" fits into the genre of erotica, and the plot and characterizations rely heavily on sexual content. Still, it has gained mainstream popularity rather than remaining genre fiction. Many credit the advent of e-readers for allowing women to read books without others knowing what they are reading. It's back on! Anastasia and billionaire bondage bonker Christian Grey are a thing again. A new trailer has been released for 'Fifty Shades Darker', the second adaptation of EL James's BDSM book franchise, which finds Dakota Johnson and Jamie Dornan relighting the fire. The trailer begins with Christian telling Anastasia he wants her back. Anastasia, not so shy anymore, replies with a line that will win no one an Oscar: 'Okay I will have dinner with you, because I'm hungry.' It's not long before the pair are looking all smouldery - in some locations that will have you gasping at the Elle Decoration interiors more than the rude stuff. There's shower sex Lift naughtiness ...and Jamie Dornan looking all buff. TBH, the trailer feels about as sexually-charged as that carrot you left in the back of the cupboard and forgot to eat three weeks ago. But the first film wasn't that bad. (Our critic: 'It may not make you come, but you'll still be glad you went'). 'Fifty Shades Darker' is out on February 10.
